

THE HEN WHICH GAVE GOLDEN EGG

Once there was a poor man. Outside his village, he found one hen

He brought her home, and fed her very nicely

He went to sleep in great satisfaction

He got up in the morning and saw golden egg beside the hen. It was glittering. He was greatly surprised

He held the egg in his hand and observed it from all sides. It was indeed a golden egg

The man's happiness had no bounds as if he had found God himself

Each morning, the hen began to give one golden egg

This hen is a miser.
There must be many eggs in her womb but she is giving only one egg a day

One night, threatening the hen he said....

Whatever eggs are there in your womb, you must give them to me tomorrow morning! Otherwise i will cut your belly and snatch all eggs!

With the fright of being cut, she could not give even one egg

When the man saw this in the morning, he began furious

He took up the knife and cut off the hen's belly

But he did not find even one egg and the hen had lost her life. Holding his head the man began to weep loudly

MORAL :

We tend to forget that happiness doesn't come as a result of getting something we don't have, but rather of recognizing and appreciating what we do have.